

Sportsmen Against Multiple Sclerosis

The Brill Area Sportsmen's Club put on the Sportsmen Against Multiple Sclerosis trap shoot on August 26, 2012 to raise funds for the Wisconsin Chapter. The event brought together approximately 70 shooters and more than 200 attendees who raised more than $6,700 through the event, which included a silent auction, raffle, dog show, turkey call making and food sales in addition to trap shooting. It was the fourth year the club has held a benefit shoot and the first to benefit the National MS Society.

"They wanted to do it for me," said Bruce Frei, an avid duck and deer hunter who was diagnosed with MS six years ago. "It has been a lot harder but I still am able to hunt due to the fact that my friends make sure that I can get to the hunting area safely," he said, adding that his buddies at the sportsmen's club get him out to the trap range in a golf cart. "They know that trap shooting is very special to me."

Frei noted that club members stepped up to help make it a great event by securing raffle and auction items (including custom-made furniture and quilts) from throughout the state. The Superior Chapter of Safari Club International brought an enclosed trailer with African animal mounts. They also donated a $1,200 rifle that made a big impact on the auction and donated an additional $500 to the event.
